

JUNE 2012

Norco IMC invites you to take a look back to June 22, 1993 when the first class of students graduated from Norco College (then Norco Campus of RCC).

It was a landmark event that for the first time included students who had taken classes exclusively at Norco College.

One student, Lisa Royce, 21, began her college career in the Fall of 1990 when classes were held in a rented church.

The graduates age ranged from 19-years old to 53-years old and included a set of twins. Norco's typical student was, according to Dean David Waxmen, "working & handling family responsibilities while taking classes."

All of the Norco graduates and their families celebrated with a reception held on campus a few weeks prior to the graduation. It was followed by a performance of "Crimes of the Heart" in the Little Theater.
