How to Choose the BEST Basic Skills English class?

ENG 60A (4 units) and 60B (4 units)—These students want or need to take the slower route, so they can fill in all the gaps in their composition, grammar and reading skills. They usually have significant gaps in some writing skills, grammatical structures as well as a lower reading placement. We recommend anyone with a reading placement of 81 take ENG 60A and then 60B. Upon successful completion, students finish the Basic Skills series with their ENG 50. We also recommend students take the reading and the English at the same time.

ENG 70 (4 units)—This combines ENG 60A and ENG 60B into one class. This is an acceleration, so we encourage students who have a reading score of 82 or 83 to take this option. Students will get a comprehensive brush up on grammar and writing during this class, but the topics will go quickly. Students finish the Basic Skills series with ENG 50. We also recommend students take their reading class and the English class at the same time.

ENG 80 (6 units)—This is the fastest route to ENG 1A, as it combines all of three classes into one course. This is a good route for someone who needs to brush up on some skills in writing or responding to text or who may feel they need a comprehensive overview of the Basic Skills in English, for example, a returning student who likes to read, but has been out of the classroom for a while; or someone who did well in English but did not necessarily to well on the placement test. This class does have some reading skills work in it, but if the student has a recommendation of lower than reading 82, we recommend another route.
