Student Centered Funding Formula

Student Centered Funding Formula

The Student Centered Funding Formula is all about ensuring community colleges are funded, at least in part, in how well their students are faring. It is upending how California's community colleges receive state money by basing general apportionments – discretionary funds available to community college districts – on three calculations:

- A base allocation, which largely reflects enrollment.
- A supplemental allocation based on the numbers of students receiving a College Promise Grant, students receiving a Pell Grant and students covered by AB 540.
- A student success allocation based on outcomes that include the number of students earning associate degrees and credit certificates, the number of students transferring to four-year colleges and universities, the number of students who complete transfer-level math and English within their first year, the number of students who complete nine or more career education units and the number of student who have attained the regional living wage.

The Student Centered Funding Formula's metrics are in line with the goals and commitment set forth in the California Community Colleges' Vision for Success (<https://vision.foundationccc.org/>) and can have a profound impact closing achievement gaps and boosting key student success outcomes. It was created in coalition with organizations such as the Campaign for College Opportunity, Education Trust-West and other key stakeholders.
